

A Maltese Commitment to Maltese Heritage Wines

Making great wines requires passion and perseverance.

And it calls for investment in craftsmanship.

The history of winemaking in Malta, the world's smallest wine-producing country, is a long and winding road with many challenging turns.

We have come a long way to encourage landowners to grow quality grapes throughout Malta and Gozo using modern planting methods and drip irrigation.

The varieties include the two indigenous grapes Girgentina and Gellewza and many more international varieties which were until then not commercially grown in Malta.

We have been bestowed with praise and told – several times over – that the wines we create reflect everything a modern wine consumer requires, fruit driven fresh wines that offer flavour, consistency and quality.

Cheers!
